Program Description:

In the first hour of the workshop, you will learn how to clearly define what the executive function skills are, including the development of the executive function skills and what is meant by the term “executive dysfunction”, for the purpose of determining the most effective treatment interventions. You will then identify materials that can be used to assess a student’s executive control skills. The rest of the day you will learn dozens of functional, ready-to-use strategies for teaching students how to develop the executive function skills.
