

About Our Speaker

Camille Byrd O'Quin, M.A., CCC-SLP

Assistant Professor and Coordinator of Clinical Education
Ed.D., Special Education, Illinois State University, Expected 2020
M.A., Speech-Language Pathology, Northwestern University, 1999
B.S., Speech and Hearing Science, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, 1997

Camille Byrd O'Quin is Assistant Professor and Coordinator of Clinical Education of the Master of Science in Speech-Language Pathology program at Lewis University in Romeoville, Illinois. She is a doctoral candidate in special education at Illinois State University with an expected graduation date of 2020. She teaches courses in ethics; clinical methods, including prevention and treatment; complex issues in education; overview of communication disorders; and preschool language disorders. Her scholarship includes professional development presentations at regional, national, and international academic institutions and conferences for the study of culturally responsive pedagogy. Mrs. O'Quin's research involves valuation of African American Vernacular English; examination of disproportionality in special education; expansion of culturally responsive teaching practices in urban education; and differential diagnosis of cultural linguistic diverse learners. Mrs. O'Quin holds a license with the Illinois State Board of Education and certification through the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association. She serves as Chair of Professional Development of the Division for Culturally and Linguistically Diverse Exceptional Learners of the Council for Exceptional Children.